

A Victim of Bullying

At some point in everyone's life, they have either been bullied or seen bullying happen. As a society, we've been long ignoring the problem of bullies because of its prevalence and awkward acceptance as a part of growing up. However, what happens when it's your child, your friend, or your brother or sister who's being bullied? What happens when the bullying becomes so bad that they decide to take their own life? What if suicides from bullying occurred as young as 8-years-old? Would we as a society finally wake up then? This is what happened to me. I was bullied so relentlessly in school that suicide seemed my only option by the third grade. I felt alone, excluded, and hated. All I wanted to do was end my own life and my suffering. This is the story of how I fell into that pit of darkness, survived the ordeal, and emerged stronger than ever. This is the story of how I conquered bullying.
